

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

Science Unbound Foundation 2009 Best Paper Awards

The Science Unbound Foundation, a not-for-profit foundation, has as its mission:

" Furthering scientific knowledge in the service of health, happiness, and quality of life of humankind through scientific research and education."

The Science Unbound Foundations' giving is primarily limited to research and educational activities in the areas of Obesity, Nutrition, and Statistical Science, topics of critical importance to today's research agenda. The Science Unbound Foundation offers four awards on an annual basis.

The four awards are for:

- Best paper by a University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB) based investigator in the area of obesity or nutrition.
- Best paper by a UAB based investigator in the area of statistical genetics.
- Best paper by a UAB based investigator in the area of general statistics.
- Best paper on obesity-related research by an investigator affiliated with the New York Obesity Research Center based at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital and Columbia University.

The institutions are chosen because of their established strength in this area and demonstrated success in promoting the careers of young investigators on these topics.

To be eligible, applicants must be the first or senior (last) author of a paper published during the year under consideration and not have won the award in the last 2 years. In 2009, awards will be given for papers appearing in peer-reviewed journals in 2008. The competition is open to investigators at all levels. Each award winner will receive a plaque and a $1,000 prize.

To apply:

- Self-nominations are acceptable
- Submit a copy of the published paper
- Submit a cover letter of not more than 1 page explaining the importance of the paper and indicating that the nominee played a leadership role in producing the paper.
- Submit to address below by Mon 6/1/2009 at 5:00 pm central time.
